General conditions for commercial instruments

General conditions for commercial instruments (cheques, bills of exchange, receipts, etc.) drawn inside and outside Switzerland

- In submitting to the Bank a collection order subject to these fee conditions, the assignor acknowledges all the provisions of these fee conditions
- These fee conditions represent minima and are applicable to each instrument, unless another condition applies
- If a collection involves any additional correspondence, this will be calculated separately
- Other costs (postage, telephone, etc.) and correspondents' fees are not included in this collection fee schedule. They are added or deducted depending on whether or not they are paid by the drawee
- Fees and charges will also be calculated on commercial instruments which are disputed, unpaid or returned unaccepted
- In the event of delivery without values on bills of exchange, receipts, etc., the same fees will be charged as if the collection had taken place
- If the Bank credits the exchange value of an instrument (bills of exchange, cheques, receipts, etc.) under the usual reserve, the credit is made subject to collection; this also applies when instruments are payable to the bank responsible for collection
- Cheques presented at our counters on Saturdays for credit under the usual reserve are deemed to have been presented on the next working day
- The date of receipt of documents sent to the bank managing the account is decisive for determining the value date
- No responsibility is accepted for:
  - the prompt presentation and lifting of the dispute on drafts after maturity date or where the drawee's address is insufficient
  - exchange rate variations on commercial instruments denominated in foreign currency
  - the validity and consequences of commercial instruments which have been extended
- "Free" commercial instruments are only notified at the assignor's express request
- Assignors must, at the Bank's first request, provide the Bank with duplicates of any commercial instrument which is lost or which has become unusable or must request the immediate blocking of the instrument and obtain the issue of a replacement instrument
- In all other respects, collections are executed in accordance with the "Uniform Rules for Collection" issued by the International Chamber of Commerce
